Superintendent: Safeguards still necessary

BY BOB DEMAREE

With COVID-19 cases continuing to decline in local counties — all positivity rates are now below 30% — the death toll continues to climb with one new virus-related death reported in Jefferson County.

Jefferson County's positivity rate is now at 26.4% while Trimble County is at 25.53%, Carroll County 22.81% and Switzerland County the area lowest at 11.3%. Meanwhile, the State of Indiana's positivity rate stands at 18.3% while the Kentucky's statewide rate is 21.16%.

After nearly two years of dealing with the coronavirus, Madison Consolidated Schools Superintendent Dr. Jeffrey Studebaker offered some encouragement to students and staff at Wednesday's school board meeting.

"I know people are weary," he said. "I know that you are working hard. I know that you are tired. But you're persevering. The kids are getting the best education that we can possibly deliver when we're constantly moving kids in and out of session" due to issues with the virus. "It is amazing to watch what you guys do. It is appreciated."

Studebaker said Madison schools has continued to follow COVID-19 guidelines for student safety while keeping students attending classes in-person as much as possible.

Michael Dean Woods 54, Madison, and Benjamin Andrew Moses Weary 40, Madison, were previously arrested as part of the ongoing investigation. Both remain incarcerated at the Jefferson County Jail on charges of dealing in methamphetamine.

Meanwhile, a Madison man has been arrested on multiple felony charges for allegedly holding a woman against her will and beating her over a period of several days.

Robert Ralph Francis "Rob T" Taylor, 45, Madison, was arrested on Tuesday after the alleged victim reported the incident to Madison Police Department Patrolman Cameron Blankenship, who investigated. Blankenship determined that Taylor battered the woman and held her against her will for several days. The women sustained "obvious physical injuries" requiring medical treatment.

Madison Police located Taylor at his residence in the 600 block of Green Road. He refused to cooperate with officers, requiring forced entry into the residence before being taken into custody. During a security sweep of the residence, officers noticed narcotics and paraphernalia in plain view and a narcotic search warrant was obtained, allowing the seizure of methamphetamine, syringes and drug paraphernalia.

Taylor faces preliminary charges of Kidnapping and Criminal Confinement Resulting in Serious Bodily Injury, both Level 3 felonies; Domestic Battery, a Level 5 felony; and Intimidation, a Level 6 felony. The investigation is ongoing and additional charges are possible.

Blankenship was assisted by MPD Captain Dan Slygh and Senior Patrolman Chad Wehner.

Taylor, who was serving court ordered probation on community corrections at the time of his arrest, was lodged in the Jefferson County Jail where he is being held in lieu of $10,000 full cash bond.

Elsewhere, A Carroll County man has been arrested by Kentucky State Police and charged with sodomy and rape involving a female teenager.

Steel is up on new jail construction

County still must address mental illness, addiction

BY BOB DEMAREE

Construction of the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office and Criminal Justice Center continues to move forward with Commissioner David Bramer reporting at Thursday's meeting that "the steel is up and it is beginning to look like a building now."

With the 300-bed, 84,799-gross-square-foot facility due be completed and open in 2023, Bramer said the county still needs to address issues of substance abuse and mental health.

"We realized when we built a new jail that you couldn't build a jail big enough without doing other things," he said. "Helping people with mental health issues and helping people with addiction issues" also needs to be done.

Bramer said addressing mental health and drug addiction issues will be a tough challenge. "It's a huge thing to crack open," he said.

Council discusses health department renovation

Voting machines to relocate to Annex

BY BOB DEMAREE

A plan to renovate the Jefferson County Health Department is moving forward following support by the County Council at its meeting Tuesday.

The cost of the project is being funded by reimbursement funds from the COVID-19 vaccine and booster shots the department has administered which JCHD Administrator Tammy Monroe said makes about $135,000 available.

"We just need better utilization of space at the health department," said Monroe, of the facility located at 715 Green Road located on Madison's hilltop. "I have space. I just don't have good utilization of the space."

Monroe said she has received assistance from Commissioner Bobby Little in helping plan how to reconfigure and renovate the office for better utilization.

She also said three quotes have been received for the work— Can Do Maintenance at a cost of $98,730, Combs Construction for $87,000, and Teton Corporation for $76,656 — although she said the Teton quote included some alternates that if added would make costs nearly comparable between the Combs and Teton. The decision was to advertise for a $90,000 appropriation to be voted on by the County Council at its March meeting, leaving enough funding to consider exactly what work will be required.

As part of that process for better configuring the health department, voting machines and their printers that are currently stored at the health department will need be relocated. Little said they have found a room in the west end of the Courthouse Annex that's 432 square feet and can be temperature controlled to what's required for the voting machines. He said they will be adding a drop ceiling, insulation and a secure entrances to the space to bring it up to state standards for storing the voting machines.

Bids to make the necessary improvements to that room were received at Thursday's County Commissioners meeting — $33,966 from Teton, $43,227 from Can Do Maintenance and $45,850 from Combs Construction. The bid was awarded to Teton.

JAIL

Commissioner Ron Lee has been involved in monthly meetings seeking ways to bring a substance treatment center to Jefferson County. He said it's a problem in Jefferson County and throughout Indiana that can be resolved fast enough.

"We've got to do something to correct this," Lee said. "I am worried about where our county is with meth, our drug problems, our mental health status. We are not rated very high in Indiana with our county. We are worried about it."

Lee said it's been "a slow process" moving forward and it "needs to be a fast process but it just doesn't happen. We're trying. We're working and I am worried about it."

Bramer said the important thing is that people are working on a solution and with the right resources progress will be made.

"It's not moving as quick as you'd like, but it's moving. Those discussions are happening," Bramer said. "There are resources there that are going to help this county out" and continue to advance the process.

In other business:

• All-Star Paving of Seymour was the lowest bidder for the county's local paving contract for 2022 at $669,084.96. Other bids came from Dave O'Mara Contractor for $674,204, MAC Construction and Excavation for $820,840 and Paul H. Rohe Company for $864,995. For Community Crossings paving projects for 2022, the lowest bidder was Dave O'Mara at $1,388,809. Other bids came from All-Star Paving at $1,434,617.80, MAC Construction and Excavation at $1,710,820, and Paul H. Rohe Company for $1,835,460.

• Established an agreement with the Indiana Department of Transportation for Lost Fork Road to be the local detour for an upcoming State Road 56 closure due to work on a bridge that's in Jefferson County 2.5 miles west of the Switzerland County line near Lost Fork Road. County Highway Department Clerk Vicki Wehner said INDOT has scheduled the project to take 120 days sometime between April 1 of this year and Oct. 30, 2023. The Commissioners approved the agreement with the stipulation that there be a 5-ton weight limit and a prohibition on semi trucks with those requirements posted on signs. However, part of Lost Fork Road is also in Switzerland County, and officials in that county will have to determine the restrictions for the local detour which Commissioner Bobby Little said he hopes will "mirror what we're doing."

• Awarded a contract for rehabilitation of Bridge 109 on Brooksburg-Mannville Road to Sedam Contracting for $185,815. The bids were presented at the previous Commissioners meeting but the awarding of contract to Sedam, the lowest bidder, was delayed until specifications were thoroughly reviewed.

• Agreed to a contract with Malcon, a Carmel consulting firm, for obtaining fuel tax refunds on county vehicles characterized as not putting wear and tear on the roads. Malcon in its effort to obtain the refunds will receive 50% of the county's reimbursement up to $3,000 per quarter, meaning the most Malcon can be reimbursed is $1,500 per quarter.

• Bramer said the Commissioners should move forward to finalize a contract with Taylor Siefker Williams Design Group to update the county's ordinances. County Council offered its support to the contract at its meeting on Tuesday and budgeted $50,000 for the ordinance update on a contract of $74,960, meaning an additional appropriation of $24,960 will be needed.

• Approved an information technology contract with Ovation Technology Group for 2022 after receiving support earlier in the week from County Council for the necessary funding.

• Appointed Victoria Perry to the Jefferson County Board of Tourism for 2022.

• Approved a renewal of the county's worker compensation policy through RLS Insurance for a premium of $103,549, along with the reserve officers accident and sickness policy for a premium of $779.

ARRESTS

The arrest comes after officers at KSP Post 5 at Campbellsburg, Kentucky, conducted multiple interviews while investigating a sexual assault complaint from the Kentucky Cabinet of Health and Family Services. The alleged victim is reportedly a 16-year-old female.

Davis is lodged in the Carroll County Detention Center in Carrollton where he is being held without bail. The investigation is ongoing.

A Madison man was arrested Tuesday for domestic battery related charges, while also possibly facing additional charges in the ongoing investigation.

There needs to be a quick turnaround on completion of the room at the Annex because the voting machines must be moved before March 1 in order to meet state requirements leading up to the May 3 primary election.

Once done, Little said the move could actually provide more access convenience for the Clerk's office with the Courthouse being on Jefferson Street directly across from the Annex building. Instead of having the voting machines on the hilltop at the health department, "they will be right across the street and more handy" for the Clerk's office, Little said. He is hopeful work can start by Monday in order to be completed by the end of the month.

Additionally, the Council gave its approval to move forward on replacing 18 windows at the health department on the south side of the building. Kinsinger Custom Windows of Vevay, which had previously installed the windows on the north side, had offered to do the job for $64,329.48, but in the last month an additional quote was received from Glass Unlimited of Madison for $59,612 and that business was awarded the contract.

Hoarding addiction might bury me alive

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I am a single and retired homeowner. The problem is that I have a spending addiction where I nickel-and-dime myself to death. I literally cannot stop.

My house is full of things I have bought, and while not stuffed from floor to ceiling, it puts me at risk physically. I am willing to admit I have a hoarding problem and have to clean out the house, but most services to help hoarders are too expensive. I am disabled and find myself overwhelmed at the thought of tackling these problems, so I do very little.

I know I have to do something, but none of the things I have tried so far have worked. I am afraid that I will die one day, be discovered buried under stuff, and leave a mess for my friends. HELP!!! — Stuff Addict

Dear Stuff Addict: The first step to solving a problem is recognizing there is one. Not only have you done that and expressed you want to change but you recognize that the way you're living now is putting you in harm's way. It's time to take action.

A simple internet search for junk pickup services will show what's available in your local community for free. Anything that is broken beyond repair or simply garbage has to go. Items that are fully functional but no longer serve you are just waiting to be of service to someone else. Consider dropping off donations at your local Goodwill store or scheduling a Purple Heart pickup from your home. Consult their websites for information on what makes for an acceptable donation first.

This will help with the state of your home, but you must also tackle the state of your mind. Work with a therapist to uncover the root of your hoarding compulsions and strategies on how best to discard them, too.

Dear Annie: I read your answer to "Speed Bump in My Speech," who debated whether or not to include she has a speech impediment in her online dating profile after doing so for years and attracting the wrong matches. I'd like to add to your suggestion.

I am a 47-year-old woman and have walked with a limp since birth. Many years ago, when I was looking to settle down, my parents suggested I not mention the limp during the initial phone call days. To them, I am a very well-educated, intelligent, charming woman who guys will find hard to say no to, especially after great initial conversations. I followed it for almost six months and realized when guys found the limp off-putting, I was severely depressed for the first time in my life.

That's when my best friend mentioned that written words have immense power and suggested writing down the qualities of the man I am seeking in my diary. With that clarity and a few months' time later, I was lucky enough to fall in love with and marry the first person with whom I decided to go on a date. I told him about my limp within 15 minutes of our first conversation. He matched the exact qualities I was looking for in a life partner. We have been married for over 21 years now and have two beautiful daughters.

I wish all the best for "Speed Bump" to find her love. — Quite Requited Love

Dear Requited Love: Thank you for your letter; I love a happy ending.

My partner is letting me down

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I have been in a relationship with a man for 10 years, and we have been engaged for four years. In the beginning, it was wonderful, and I am aware that all relationships go through ups and downs. I love him deeply, and oftentimes over the years I have put my needs, wants and desires aside in order to see him happy or to avoid confrontation.

We are two different people in many ways — from family to politics to overall worldviews. The saying, "opposites attract," is very much the case in our relationship.

I am an independent corporate woman who does not need a man to provide for me, but I do want this man to share my life with — the good, the bad, the dull, the exciting — all of it. The problem is that I have spent so many years putting him first in the relationship that now I need him to put me first, and he doesn't.

My child was diagnosed with cancer last year and is going through chemo treatments. As a mother, it is heartbreaking to watch your child go through this, and I struggle to be strong for my child, continuing to keep the household going and working a 40-hour-per-week corporate job.

I want the man I love to be my support, the person I lean on, the person who helps me smile on days when I just sit and cry. I want his arms to hold me and tell me he is here to help us through this.

Instead, he is more distant and often stays away all day. I suspect he does this in order to avoid dealing with the situation. Am I being overly sensitive, considering the stress I am feeling, or is it time to realize that I need more in a relationship for myself? — Feeling All Alone

Dear All Alone: You are not wrong to want him to hold you, cry with you and help you through one of the most difficult things a parent will ever face. In fact, you are completely human and have every right to ask for that in your relationship.

Just because in the past you put him above your own needs — which now you see might have not been the best choice because in order to take care of others, we must take care of ourselves first — does not mean you need to continue doing that. By writing this letter, you are finally taking care of yourself so that you can be there for your child. If he is distant and incapable of having any compassion or empathy during this time, then I would ask him to leave or at least tell him exactly what YOU need right now in the relationship.

Taking care of yourself and your child are your first priorities. If he falls short and is unable to help out, then make sure you lean on friends and family members who can be there for you during this time. Best of luck to you and your family.

SAFEGUARDS

"If we don't have a mask mandate in place we have to send home all our close contact quarantines," he said, noting the day before that rule took effect there were 200 students out on close contact quarantine alone, but after the policy changed and schools initiated the mask mandate that number dropped to just 30 students out.

"On occasion we've had those numbers explode" when county COVID-19 numbers have been high, resulting in virtual learning at the affected schools. "But we're still moving the needle forward, the kids are getting a quality education," he said, citing last year's test scores with Madison Consolidated Schools performing ahead of many school districts throughout the state.

Finally, Studebaker said if the school district did not follow guidelines by the Centers for Disease Control, Indiana Department of Health and the Governor's executive orders, and "someone were to get sick and die, and they were to sue the district, we're done" because the insurance company would "say you didn't follow the procedures that you were supposed to follow," and refuse to provide insurance coverage.

"I understand that we're tired. I understand we're weary. But now is not the time to back up," Studebaker said. "We're coming out of the peak. We're hopefully going to be past it in a few weeks. And with any luck at all we'll be able phase the masking mandate out once it's safe to do so."

At the same time Studebaker noted that based on past history it could be some time before the community is totally past the pandemic.

"Historically speaking, when we had the last outbreak 100 years ago, it took three years to get past it," he said. "The third year was not as severe, but it was still there, so we can expect to be dealing with it next year in some manner."

With the one new COVID death in Jefferson County, there have now been a total of 134 there and die there and 225 in the four local counties. Carroll's death rate remains at 40 while Trimble has had 35 and Switzerland County has had 16 deaths.

Jefferson County's total positive cases during the pandemic is now at 9,210, an increase of 73 in the last two days, while Switzerland County's total is 2,266, an increase of 20 in the last two days. Carroll County's total is now 3,337, an increase of 20 in the last two days, while Trimble County's total is 2,066, an increase of 10 in the last two days.

Parks board gets update on status of 5-year plan

BY BOB DEMAREE

With Madison Parks Department working to update its five-year plan as part of a requirement for receiving Land and Water Conservation Fund grants, Parks Director Matt Woolard outlined how the process is moving forward at Monday's Madison Parks Board meeting.

Woolard said the rough draft was completed on Jan. 14 with the demographics, completed surveys, information on the condition of the parks and facilities, and socioeconomic factors. The next part of the process will be a public hearing, which will take place at 5 p.m. on Monday, March 7, at Madison City Hall. After that, he said a needs analysis must be completed along with a priorities and action schedule before the final document is submitted to the Indiana Department of Natural Resources on April 15.

Woolard cited a breakdown of priorities that includes upgrading neighborhood parks, achieving financial solvency for city facilities (such as Madison Campground, Crystal Beach pool and Sunrise Golf Course), improving communication and online marketing presence to increase participation, and upgrading major facilities like the Rucker Sports Complex.

Board member Carla Eades Krebs also offered some wish list items "if money wasn't an option, and what you could do in a dream world." She suggested a park focusing more on adult activities such as a Labyrinth walking path and gardens. "It would be one that you can walk through and smell flowers," she said, with a community space in which local residents gather to plant flowers and take care of them.

Eades also proposed developing activities at facilities throughout the city to bring events to the neighborhoods for youth to be involved closer to their homes for those who may not have transportation.

Madison Mayor Bob Courtney agreed, remembering that in his youth parks programming would come to various locations throughout the community.

"That's a very fond memory that I have," Courtney said. "If there's a return back to that, it would be great. Neighborhoods are different, kids are different, their lifestyles are very different, their interests are very different. But I know they're already exploring things in the programming realm that's different than just athletics. And that will bring more participants in our programs, and we think that's also very important."

Courtney noted that master planning is extremely important and it's been a few years since that took place.

"What we want to be different about this plan is to really drill down on what the priorities are, and then make it happen" with how the city operates and invests for a "stronger, better, viable, sustainable, more beautiful parks system."

Is your retirement income based on guarantees or assumptions?

"Smart planning should include some of your important retirement accounts are guaranteed."

Layin It On The Line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

When planning retirement, do you depend on projections based on future conditions, or do you plan your retirement based on guarantees? The answer may surprise you; both can be the correct answer. It all depends on your situation and what "time" period you are focusing on retirement.

Let's start with a projection or estimate of future value planning. If you base your future retirement income solely on US (or foreign) stocks, the volatility factor must be included. How will your chosen stocks perform over some time, and how easily can they convert to a retirement account to fund your desired income level? S0 much about a stock's performance can depend on outside influences such as the overall world economy, the valuation of the dollar, inflation or deflation, and a third parties (analysis) view of your stock's profit results. A group of top stock strategists can predict anything from a single-digit loss to a double-digit gain.

How do you plan for your future retirement income?

Whom do you trust?

How do you estimate future market values?

Experimenting with discretionary funds is one thing, but significant retirement funds could be a poor choice. Once again, it all depends on your situation.

Many people lose sight of the actual goal of retirement planning, which in its most basic form is to make your retirement income lasts as long as we do. This seems like a relatively straightforward objective, so why do so many people start with a retirement income strategy that leaves so much to chance? Let's consider the choices again by category; one is an estimate, and the other is a guarantee. Depending on your asset values and your desired lifestyle, there can be room for both types of planning. The key is that essential expenses must be covered first and fully funded by lifetime income sources.

You'll enjoy some significant advantages if your lifetime sources of income are sufficient to fund essential lifestyle expenses. The question and problem are the same: How do you do it? First on the list is to avoid market volatility risk and accept a reasonable rate of return.

New studies show if given a choice, most people would choose safe, secure income over yields. When the funds have to be there, and the income is essential, safety becomes the first decision. Having this sort of income planning eliminates the possibility of outliving your source of income, or what is called longevity risk. Knowing that your necessary expenses are covered with a guaranteed source of income is a great comfort and sense of freedom to enjoy your retirement years, no matter how long you live.

Given all the uncertainties, the unpredictable outcomes, and the unending list of "what-ifs" facing investors, it's no surprise that drawing an accurate road map to where financial markets are headed is no easy task. Even for the Wall Street players who admit there are too many variables that are beyond our capabilities to absorb and forecast. That is precisely why it's a top priority for those retired or about to retire to understand the risk they face without having put into place a guaranteed retirement income solution to alleviate the risk of running out of money.

Let's take a look at the state of America's retirement system. A generation ago, pension plans were offered to more than four out of five private-sector workers—today, it's fewer than one in three. An employee has mainly replaced pensions paid plans like 401(k)s, 403(b)s, or 457s. Expenses built into many of these plans make it difficult to earn the needed money to fund basic retirement needs. The shortcomings of this approach are evident in its lack of guarantees—an essential factor when you consider the current historical level of market volatility. Plus, new insight into how fees are charged and the actual cost of owning these plans have come under regulatory scrutiny.

Thankfully, solutions exist that can potentially increase your income and generate a lifetime pension payout to both spouses with the benefits of protection and guarantees.

We use the only financial instrument to provide a guaranteed income that you cannot outlive and maintain control of your money with upside potential and no downside risk. How can this be accomplished?

Naturally, by handing the risk of managing your significant retirement funds to a risk bearer. An insurance company is a risk bearer.

Since the Presbyterian Church first invented annuities nearly 300 years ago, annuities have been the cornerstone of millions of retirees' significant retirement income. With the evolution of new and dynamic products, a guaranteed income with annual crediting in the 4-7% range is fully available.

Removing risk from retirement planning by allowing an insurance company to manage your retirement accounts can provide you with a stress-free and secure future.

Rams, Bengals have stars to keep attention on field

BY TERESA M. WALKER
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

LOS ANGELES — Three-time AP NFL Defensive Player of the Year Aaron Donald. Three-time All-Pro cornerback Jalen Ramsey. Wide receiver Odell Beckham Jr. with his pass-catching flair. And the NFL's best receiver this year in Cooper Kupp.

Those are only some of the big names on the Los Angeles Rams.

Then there's Cincinnati quarterback Joe Burrow. Young, confident to the point of brashness and with a fashion sense and style off the field reminiscent of another young QB named Joe who once made waves on the big stage in Joe Namath.

Yes, there will be more than enough star power on the field Sunday at the Super Bowl to match the celebrities in the stands at SoFi Stadium.

"I think if you look cool in the dictionary, there's a picture of him in some Cartier shades," Beckham said of Burrow. "This guy is smooth and truly, as ... he's going to be one of the greats, I feel like. And I truly believe that Joe Burrow yes, is definitely cool, for sure."

Cincinnati quarterback Joe Burrow warms up during practice on Wednesday in Los Angeles. The Bengals meet the Los Angeles Rams on Sunday in Super Bowl 56.

Burrow has earned plenty of attention leading the Bengals far beyond worst to first in just his second NFL season. With Cincinnati's first Super Bowl berth since the 1988 season, Burrow is the toast of Ohio. LeBron James has reached out to him and rapper Kid Cudi direct messaged Burrow on social media.

It's why Burrow is staying off social media.

"I haven't checked in a while," Burrow said. "My phone hasn't been blowing up as much, so that's been nice. Just trying to eliminate those distractions. But yeah, the social part of the position that I'm in, it's crazier than the football part to me."

Burrow showed off his fashion sense at the AFC title game. First with a big coat on his way into Arrowhead Stadium, then with a gold and diamond necklace over his classic black turtleneck postgame. Cincinnati rookie kicker Evan McPherson says Burrow's style is pushing him to up his own game for the Super Bowl.

"I probably learned a thing or two from him ...," McPherson said. "My favorite one is probably the jacket from this past (game) in my opinion. It's definitely special and definitely unique."

The Rams live in Los Angeles — Hollywood, you know — so style comes naturally. No outfit can come close to matching the sheer star power on the roster for a team that seemingly can't collect enough big names.

They traded for Matthew Stafford, upgrading significantly at quarterback. During this season, they traded for linebacker Von Miller, the NFL's active sacks leader and Super Bowl 50 MVP;

Panthers pull away for 66-60 victory over Franklin

Hanover men clinch share of HCAC title

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Hanover started fast and ended fast and the result was a 66-60 victory over rival Franklin in women's basketball Wednesday at Collier Arena.

Hanover, which is fighting to secure a spot in the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference postseason tournament, outscored the Grizzlies 24-12 in the first quarter, but entered the fourth quarter trailing 49-46 after Franklin dominated the two middle quarters.

The Panthers still trailed 54-49 after a Sarah O'Day 3-pointer with 7:58 to play when they mounted their rally. Freshman Taylor Heath began the comeback for Hanover with a free throw and Addie Gardner followed with a layup. After a Franklin turnover, Heath scored in transition to tie the game 4-54 and later knocked down two free throws to push the Panthers ahead for good with 6:19 to play.

Hanover closed the game on a 17-6 run to win going away. Heath scored seven of her game-high 25 points during that stretch, including two on free throws with 1:32 to play to push the lead to seven.

Heath was just 6-of-17 from the floor but knocked down 13-of-15 at the free-throw line to lead the Panthers. She also had five rebounds and five assists. Callie Wilder, a junior from North Vernon, came off the bench to score 12 points for Hanover and grab seven rebounds.

Bayleigh Torrance scored 11 points to lead Franklin, which saw nine different players score in the game.

Hanover improves to 11-8 overall on the season and 8-6 in HCAC play. The Panthers are currently in fourth place in the standings with three games to play, but due to postponements related to both COVID and weather, not every team has played the same amount of games.

The Panthers travel to Manchester today where they can clinch a postseason berth with a win. Hanover then travels to undefeated Transylvania on Wednesday.

MEN CLINCH SHARE OF HCAC CROWN

Hanover clinched at lease a share of the HCAC regular-season title with a 92-67 win over Franklin Wednesday on the road.

The Panthers improved to 12-2 in league play and hold a three-game lead over Anderson in the standings with three games to play. Hanover and Anderson split their two games this season, so the Panthers would need a victory in one of the final three games to clinch the No. 1 seed.

Hanover was never threatened in rolling to the easy win on Wednesday. The Panthers rolled out to a 41-27 lead by halftime, then shot 64% from the floor in the second half to pull away.

Max Greenamoyer and Ty Houston each scored over 20 points to lead the Panthers. Greenamoyer had 23 points on 8-of-15 shooting while Houston scored 20 points and pulled down 11 rebounds.

Matt Munoz added 16 points and five rebounds for Hanover.

The Panthers travel to Manchester today and then host Transylvania on Wednesday.

SWIMMERS BREAK TWO RECORDS

Hanover's swim team broke two school records on the first day of the HCAC Championships at Rose-Hulman on Thursday.

Senior James Moll posted a time of 4:55.86 while placing ninth in the men's 500-yard freestyle to break his own school record set earlier in the day in the preliminaries.

Senior Will Morgan set a new mark of 2:03.29 in the preliminaries

SUPER BOWL XVI: BENGALS VS. RAMS

Special teams coach Simmons enjoying Bengals' Super Bowl run

Cincinnati Bengals special team coordinator Darrin Simmons fist-bumps defensive end Sam Hubbard before the team's Oct. 17, 2021 game against the Detroit Lions in Detroit. Simmons arrived with the team in 2003 and has been a model of stability. He has had the same punter/holder and long snapper since 2009, which also helped in the development of kicker Evan McPherson.

LOS ANGELES — If anyone can speak about the highs and lows of Cincinnati Bengals football it is Darrin Simmons. He has had a front row seat in 19 seasons as special teams coordinator.

Ever since Cincinnati beat Kansas City on Jan. 30 to secure its first Super Bowl appearance in 33 years, Simmons has been trying to break down the Los Angeles Rams' coverage and return units. But he's also reflected on the journey to finally get here.

"I have had to pinch myself a lot of times," said Simmons, who has the current longest tenure with one team as a special teams coach. "It has been quite a journey. These last three weeks have been a long time coming, to say the least. I'm excited to be here. I really relish the opportunity to be a part of this big game."

Simmons arrived in 2003 after Marvin Lewis was hired as head coach to turn around a franchise that had experienced 12 straight losing seasons. Lewis would lead the Bengals to seven postseason trips in 16 seasons, but they could never break through with a playoff victory.

After Cincinnati went 6-25-1 during Zac Taylor's first two seasons, Cincinnati's road to a playoff spot appeared tougher than ever. But the Bengals have been one of the NFL's best stories of the past 10 years.

The Bengals won the AFC North with a 10-7 record, broke a 30-year playoff win drought in the wild-card round against Las Vegas before getting the first two road postseason victories in franchise history against Tennessee and Kansas City to advance to the Super Bowl.

Simmons has been able to enjoy this ride accompanying two players with the longest tenure on the Bengals — the ones he spends the most time with. Punter Kevin Huber was a fifth-round pick in 2009 and long snapper Clark Harris was signed five weeks into that season.

That familiarity has paid dividends this year after kicker Evan McPherson was drafted in the fifth round. McPherson has been perfect on all 12 attempts during the playoffs and had winning field goals against the Titans and Chiefs.

"They're really an extension of me, I feel like they're coaches on the field," said Simmons of Huber and Harris. "For them to get to this point in their career and get the opportunity for all of us to be in this game together is pretty cool.

"They've been a big help to Evan. I think in his development, they keep him calm and cool."

After 16 seasons on Lewis' staff, Simmons has been able to get a different perspective with how Taylor runs the team. Simmons said that while Lewis was more of an old-school guy who didn't call plays, Taylor is calling the offense, managing in-game situations, and trying to manage the entire team.

"It's unbelievable how he can manage all that and shows his capacity. It's been really neat to be a part and see all that, but it's unbelievable the way that he deals with the players and the level of confidence that he brings to our guys," Simmons said of Taylor. "He's really made great strides from 2019 to now. It's been a credit to him how he's really evolved and developed."

Huber has also seen Simmons evolve, seeing Simmons become a little more sedate on the sideline instead of being the fiery personality that took each penalty personally.

"There's probably no one in the building that puts more time and effort than him. Year in and year out, he's got a great special teams unit that's respected around the league," Huber said.

Simmons and the kick teams will be in for a battle Sunday against the Rams, who also have one of the league's top units. Punter Johnny Hekker is sixth in gross average, while kicker Matt Gay has as big a leg as McPherson.

"They do a lot of unorthodox things that are different. They challenge you in a lot of different ways," Simmons said. "It's a unique set of schemes that are probably different than really anybody in the NFL. But they're playing very well right now."

Bengals' Taylor optimistic on progress of injured Uzomah

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati tight end C.J. Uzomah tried to send a message that he wouldn't miss the Super Bowl by taking the brace off his left knee and tossing it behind him onto the Bengals' logo during a pep rally.

His coach said Wednesday he's optimistic about Uzomah's progress even as the Bengals kept the tight end out of practice.

Zac Taylor says Uzomah likely will work at practice Thursday with the Bengals taking advantage of having three days of work left to see where the veteran is. Uzomah played only nine snaps in the AFC championship game before hurting his knee. He caught 49 passes for 493 yards and five touchdowns in the best season of his career, and he has 13 catches for 135 yards this postseason.

"Again, optimistic with where he's at," Taylor said. "Team has handled it really well. We try to keep our scheduling as consistent as possible. And you know, so we're midway through our first day here, and our guys have handled it really well."

WHICH WAY THE WIND BLOWS

The Los Angeles Rams will be practicing Thursday at the Rose Bowl, a change made trying to anticipate winds predicted to blow 20 to 30 mph with gusts up to 45 mph.

"That's the biggest inconvenience of playing the Super Bowl at home that we have to get on a bus," Rams coach Sean McVay said. "We do that pretty regularly anyway going down to SoFi Stadium."

The Rams' practices are disrupted by high winds a few times each season during the fall and winter at their training complex, which is particularly susceptible to the problem because the practice fields sit at the base of a small hill in wind-swept Thousand Oaks with no large buildings or natural windbreaks around them.

The Los Angeles area also is under a heat advisory until Sunday night with temperatures expected up to 90 degrees.

That's a big difference in temperature for the Cincinnati Bengals, who had to work through a winter storm last week back in Ohio and a reason why the Bengals flew to Los Angeles on Tuesday.

Cincinnati coach Zac Taylor said the Bengals are hydrating as best they can and compared this to dealing with cold temperatures later in the season.

"What can you do?" Taylor said. "You go out there and you manage it the best you can as you practice through the week. We're practicing in some pretty good heat right now. I think our guys will do a great job handling it."

PRINCE'S RETURN

Isaiah Prince has no regrets about the difficult decision he made last season.

Opting out because of the coronavirus pandemic still wasn't easy for the Cincinnati Bengals offensive tackle.

"Of course, I was very hurt," Prince said. "I believe that was probably one of the most trying times in my life. Looking back at my career, I don't think I've ever really missed a game, a practice — not in college.

"So for me, missing my first season (with the Bengals), that was kind of devastating for me."

Prince was drafted by Miami in the sixth round in 2019 out of Ohio State and played in four games, including two starts, as a rookie. He was waived late that season and claimed by Cincinnati a day later.

The 6-foot-7, 305-pound offensive lineman was considered a potential depth piece to help protect then-rookie quarterback Joe Burrow. But the pandemic caused Prince to reassess things at home, and he decided to not play in his first year with the Bengals.

"Being at home while I opted out, just watching, I mean, I'm human," he said. "There were times I was wondering, you know, how am I going to get back in? But I stayed faithful and kept believing in myself."

Prince, whose Bengals teammate Josh Tupou also opted out, went back to school during the year away from football and finished his undergraduate degree at Ohio State.

He used boxing to help him train and also worked out at LeCharles Bentley's O-Line Performance facility in Arizona.

Prince returned to the Bengals this season, made the roster out of training camp and took over as the starting right tackle when Riley Reiff was lost for the season with an ankle injury in December.

And now Prince is preparing to start in the Super Bowl.

"Those times definitely helped prepare me for this moment and staying focused regardless of what's going on around me," Prince said. "I think that was a very challenging time in my life, but I still had to wake up every day and stay focused on the things that really needed my attention. That definitely plays a key part in right now with everything that's going on, is just staying focused and controlling what you can control."

Bengals' Huber grew up Cincy die-hard fan dreaming of Super Bowl moment

BY DENNIS WASZAK JR.

Cincinnati Bengals punter Kevin Huber punts in the first half of a Jan. 9 game in Cleveland. Huber has been a Bengals fan all his life. He grew up in Cincinnati, went to college there and rooted for the city to celebrate a championship. The 36-year-old Bengals punter is the team's longest-tenured player.

Kevin Huber completely understands how big a deal this really is.

He's living out the dream every Bengals fan has ever had. Including himself.

The 36-year-old punter has been rooting all his life for the only NFL team for which he has played. He grew up in Cincinnati, went to college there and daydreamed as a youngster in the stands at Riverfront Stadium about the Bengals winning the Super Bowl.

And now, the Bengals' longest-tenured player is one victory away from helping deliver Cincinnati that long-elusive title.

"It would be everything," Huber said, shaking his head. "I mean, the city would just implode if we win this game."

The showdown with the Rams in Los Angeles on Sunday marks the Bengals' third Super Bowl appearance, and first in 33 years — back when Huber's infatuation didn't go far beyond loving the tiger stripes on the bright orange helmets.

Among his first football memories are of Ickey Woods, the touchdown-loving running back with the unforgettable end zone dance. He didn't have one particular favorite player as a kid, but remembers being excited when Cincinnati drafted wide receiver Peter Warrick in 2000. The then-14-year-old Huber's copy of ESPN The Magazine with Warrick, LaVar Arrington and Courtney Brown on the cover was a prized possession.

But it wasn't long before Huber became well-versed in what it meant being a Bengals fan, with lofty expectations followed by so many frustrating finishes.

"A long time of just waiting for this moment," Huber said. "You know, getting there a couple of times, but losing and then that long drought in between the last time they went and now, it would mean everything to the city. They would be just completely on cloud nine, just experiencing this, just excited, happy.

"I would assume the parade would be pretty epic."

Huber has tried to not think about that this week, but that image has decorated his mind many times as a fan and as a player. So has the post-Super Bowl celebration, with confetti falling around jubilant — and sometimes crying — players to punctuate the NFL's ultimate accomplishment.

"You see it every year," Huber said. "And you always wonder if you'll get the chance to do that."

That's coming from a guy who has the perspective of playing 13 years in the NFL and is tied with former cornerback Ken Riley for the most regular-season games played in franchise history with 207.

Huber, who insists his playing days aren't close to being done, also has those scars from his fandom for a franchise that isn't often in this position.

After the Bengals beat Las Vegas in Cincinnati in the wild-card round for their first playoff victory in 31 years, Huber gathered his thoughts for a piece published by The Player's Tribune. He chronicled how he was born and raised in Cincinnati, went to the University of Cincinnati and was drafted by the Bengals in the fifth round in 2009. Huber described the euphoria of the Bengals ending what had been the NFL's longest playoff victory drought, and how much it meant to him and the city he calls home.

"Once that article came out, I got reached out to on social media and also via texts from friends and family, just a lot of people that felt the same way," he said. "And they were able to just kind of enjoy that article from the same perspective."

A victory at Tennessee followed in the divisional round. Next came the Bengals' overtime win at Kansas City for the AFC championship, with Huber the holder on Evan McPherson's 31-yard kick that sent Cincinnati to the Super Bowl.

"It took a couple of minutes to really set in," Huber recalled with a smile. "And everybody's running around and you don't know who to hug or what to do, and you kind of feel lost. I feel like I was running around just hugging the most random people, and I have no idea what I was doing."

MLB keeps spring camps on hold, missing opener 'disastrous'

BY MARK DIDTLER AND RONALD BLUM
ASSOCIATED PRESS

ORLANDO, Fla. — Baseball Commissioner Rob Manfred says losing regular-season games to a work stoppage would be a "disastrous outcome," yet spring training remains on hold as the threat to opening day increases.

With the second-longest work stoppage in baseball history stretching into its 71st day, Manfred said teams will make a "good-faith, positive proposal in a effort to move the process forward" when negotiations with the players' association resume Saturday. It will be just the fifth economic bargaining session since the five-year labor contract expired.

Rob Manfred

MLB planned to move somewhat in the union's direction, two people who attended the owners' meeting told The Associated Press. The people spoke on condition of anonymity because Manfred did not discuss details of the proposal.

"I am an optimist and I believe we will have an agreement in time to play our regular schedule," Manfred said during a news conference Thursday after three days of meetings. "I see missing games as a disastrous outcome for this industry, and we're committed to making an agreement in an effort to avoid that."

Spring training workouts had been scheduled to start on Feb. 16. Opening day is March 31.

"The status of spring training is no change right now," Manfred said. "We're going to have a conversation with the MLBPA about the calendar. We understand where the calendar is, but until we have that conversation and until we see how this session on Saturday goes, it's no change."

Whenever an agreement is reached, at least three weeks of workouts are needed.

"We thought, 20, 21 days, whatever we had in 2020 was a problem for us," Manfred said, referring to the pandemic-shortened schedule. "The injury data supports that idea. We'd like to be 28. I'm trying not to be hard and fast. But we think more like four weeks makes sense."

Before workouts can start, additional days are needed to gear up.

"We do have some logistics that would have to be handled between an agreement and actually opening the camps, the biggest of which is the players getting where they need to be," Manfred said. "They have to ratify and we have to ratify and we won't open until it's ratified. But both of those activities can take place at the same time, concurrently. It's a few days. It should all be able to be done in a few days."

Manfred confirmed that testing players for steroids stopped when the lockout began.

"Our legal authority to conduct drug tests expired with the expired agreement," he said. "It's a topic of concern. Labor disputes make topics of concern. It's another one caused by the dispute."

Manfred also said the teams do not intend to use players with minor league contacts to play major league exhibition games.

Michigan takes down No. 3 Purdue 82-58; Dickinson scores 22

BY TIM ROBINSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Hunter Dickinson had 22 points to lead Michigan in a lopsided 82-58 win over No. 3 Purdue on Thursday night.

Eli Brooks had 16 points, Moussa Diabate had 15 points — all but two in the first half — and Caleb Houstan added 14 for the Wolverines (13-9, 7-5 Big Ten).

Jaden Ivey had 18 points, Trevion Williams had 12 and Zach Eden scored 10 for Purdue (21-4, 10-4), which saw its six-game winning streak snapped.

"When you get outrebounded like we did (35-25) and then you get doubled up in turnovers (14-7) and you don't shoot the ball well, then you need to be very, very good on the defensive end if you want a chance to win the game and we obviously weren't," Purdue coach Matt Painter said. "When you look at all those — poor shooting percentages, twice as many turnovers, they outrebounded us by 10, a lot of breakdowns defensively — you're going to get beat pretty badly."

Purdue, which went into the game shooting 50.8% from the floor, shot only 44%.

Michigan made 53% of shots from the floor.

The Boilermakers had been making 41% of their 3-pointers but made only 4 as a team in 17 attempts. Dickinson had four 3-pointers for Michigan.

"We felt we had a good shot to win the game," Dickinson said. "Just a couple of adjustments on defense we needed to make that we didn't do in the first game and that led to them taking it away from us. We felt really confident in ourselves and in the game plan and we really executed out there today."

Michigan led for most of the first half, with its biggest lead of the half, 38-29, coming on a dunk by Diabate with 10 seconds left.

The Wolverines then pulled away in the second half, leading by as many as 29 points.

"With the attack, we had with the drives by (Devante Jones) as well as the the (double teams) we were receiving in the post allowed our shooters to really get open," Michigan coach Juwan Howard said, "along with (Jones) and Eli getting into the paint and finding guys on the perimeter."

The game, originally scheduled for Jan. 11, was the second in six days between the teams.

Purdue won at home, 82-76, on Feb. 5.

BOARD

• Woolard announced Chad Ison, hired last year as program coordinator, was promoted to deputy parks director effective Jan. 31.

• Approved a contract with Jefferson County Soccer Association for 2022 for use of Rucker Sports Complex from April 1 through Oct. 31. Payments will be in two installments — the first being $1,000 due by May 1 with a $100 penalty if late and the second $2,000 due by Sept. 1 with a $200 penalty if late.

• Woolard updated that the new Astra software unveiled for Madison Campground went live Jan. 27, and the city campground now shows up on the Reserve America camping and campground online platform. "It's the number one database to search for campgrounds across the nation," he said. In 2021, Woolard said reservations in January and February brought in $35,000. Within five days of the new software going live, the city had booked $49,000 in reservations. "So, that's just an example of the power of having a prominent online presence," he said.

Asked a night later at Madison City Council how quickly the campground had booked for the 2022 Madison Regatta Weekend, Woolard said "all 34 camp sites were gone in about 5 minutes."

• Woolard reported that he had met with the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) about improvements to the upper portion of John Paul Park. He said they acquired "beautiful rustic benches" that will be installed once the weather warms up and concrete can be poured to ensure they are secure. He said there are also plans to update with newer lights that "still maintains that rustic look."

• Woolard said the city is evaluating how best to upgrade the bathhouse at the city campground. "If we're going to do this, we want to do it the correct way," he said. "We want to have a sound plan in place until we go and re-invent the whole structure."

While reporting to city council on Tuesday, Woolard said the facility will most likely be freshened up with paint this year and then replaced with a new, more modern bathhouse for 2023 after further study and when additional revenue is collected to pay for the upgrades.

Courtney said there's value to the city to making improvements to the campground. "We know there's a lot of beautification that needs to happen at the campground and it will happen," he said, adding, "Of all the park assets that we have, the campground is one that does have a very stable and improving revenue profile, so it can afford to support some kind of debt to accelerate the improvements that need to happen at the campground. A lot of thought is going into the campgrounds."

• Local resident Jan Vetrhus expressed concern about what will happen to a mural located on a wall facing Crystal Beach pool after the city's Historic Board of Review granted permission for the property's owner to remove the metal shed as part of a renovation of the otherwise brick structure. She said the mural has a timeline beginning in 1939, the year the pool opened, through the city's Bicentennial year in 2009.

"Students painted the mural that's painted in decades to tell the history of Crystal Beach," she said. "We want to make sure that mural is taken care of," noting teacher Bonnie Peugeot led the effort to create the mural and "it took a lot of work to complete and there were a lot of people in the community involved in it, and we want to make sure it is repurposed somehow."

• Ison reported that improvements are coming to Kiwanis Park, including upgrades to the press box and installation of new fencing. He said paint for the pressbox has been purchased and preparations are underway for the new fencing with work slated to begin when the weather warms up.
